A FINE RECORD AT THE WICKETS The Successful Season Enjoyed by Tw Elevens of the New Jersey A. C.

The annual report of the cricket departmen of the New Jersey A. C. is an interesting docu ment, and it shows how the team went through the season without sustaining a defeat until in the very last match played, when they had to submit to the Patersons.

M. R. Cobb, as usual, leads in batting, with a splendid record, and it may be noted that he made nearly twice as many runs as any other member of the team, F. J. Prendergast did well, and he made his runs in the important matches. H. C. Wright and C. Byers also did their share of run-getting.

In the bowling department, the brunt of the work fell on F. F. Kelly and M. R. Cobb, the former leading by something less than a run per wicket. The records: GAMES WON.

MILITARY INSTRUCTION.

At the last annual encampment of the Grand Army held in Pittaburgh, the question of military instruction in the public schools was discussed and Gen. George W. Wingate was ap-pointed a "special aids to the Commander-in-Chief in charge of military instruction in schools." At the request of several committees representing teachers in different cities he has prepared some suggestions as to the methods to be pursued. It would be best, he thinks, for the Boys over 11, and who are at least 4 feet 6 inches tall, and whose parents do not object, should be drilled regularly in the manual of arms and by company and battalion two hours a week, outside school hours, great care being

The drills should be regarded as a privilege. Faults should be punished by the deprivation of certain insignia, which may be adopted by the school, and a loss of membership in the battallon for a month. Discipline should be quiet but firm. Everything possible should be done to inculcate a military bearing, which involves an upright carriage, neatness in dress, attention. silence, and the utmost promptness in rendering strict obedience to all orders, whether from the instructors or the cadet officers. It should also be impressed upon the boys that absolute truthfulness, a high regard for personal honor, and an aversion to anything dishonest or tyrannical service. A school for officers should be established.

In time the officers can put the battalion through the drill, but at the beginning an instructor is necessary. Properly there should be paid instructors who will devote their time to the matter. One of these can look after about six schools. It is hoped that the services of army officers can be soon had for this purpose in large cities. If the drills can be had in the morning or in the evening, it will be easy to procure sufficient volunteer instructors from the National Guard.

The question of uniforms should be left to each school. A cap alone is sufficient to begin with, and costs but little. In most cases it will be found that a plain uniform costs no more than ordinary clothes, and lasts logace, as the boys take better care of it. Ordinarily a cap and blouse will be sufficient, which may be worn by the boys at all times. A white webbling waist belt and plate adds very materially to the soldierly appearance where a dark blue blouse is used, and is inexpensive. Swords and belts for the officers should be provided by the authorities and belong to the school. The uniforms used in Brooklyn Grammar School 15 cost 3d, and the cap 50 cents additional. Those used in Grammar School 87, New York, cost:

Considerable feeling was manifested in the election of delegates to the National Assembly by the Santee adherents. The latter, who was defeated for the office of Chief Consul, had his representatives question almost every action taken at the meeting.

SKATING SEASON BEGINS.

The Ice on Van Cortlandt Lake to Good and Crowds Enjoy the Sport.

The small boy was in high feather all day yesterday. His cup of happiness was filled to he brim and his heart was as light as the invigorating air. And no wonder, for the skating eason began in real earnest. Van Cortlands Lake, which is the first place where one will look to enjoy this favorite pastime, was thrown open to the public yesterday for the first time this season. This glowing piece of news spread like wildfire, and before long the lake was invaded by a large crowd. Old skates which had enjoyed quiet repose since last year were brought into service and utilized for all they enjoyed quiet repose since last year were brought into service and utilized for all they were worth. The little man who hires the skates at the lake was much in demand, and he did a land-office business.

The ice was in fine condition. It looked like one plees of polished glass without a flaw. A few little hillocks of snow only remained on some parts to tell the story of last Thursday's storm. The lake, which is about half a mile long, was a trifle uncomfortable at times owing to the size of the crowd. This, however, did not unnerve the ardor or enthusiasm of the merry skaters, who came for fun and were bound to have it. Of course there were a few collisions and some "flops," but no severe accidents were reported.

The lake at Central Park will be opened, if calculations do not go amiss, by to-morrow. The ice is not in shape yet, being only from 2 to 2½ inches thick. This, of course, refers to the lower lake. The upper lake in Harlem is not in proper condition, but it will only require the continuance of the present weather to make it eligible for skating. Four inches is the onatimum thickness necessary to make it acid for the public. Croton Lake will probably be ready for skating by to-morrow. The ice is in pretty fair condition, but it is not thick enough to warrant satiety. At least this is the information which The Sun received yesterday.

Hooksellers Rendy to Furnish Libraries of from 100 to 10,000 Volumes-The Choice of Books-Many New Libraries Artsing. Chicago University's feat of creating a library f several hundred thousand volumes at a single stroke, as it were, is unsurpassed in the line of lightning library making, but ready-made libraries are bought in tills city almost every work. Several booksellers stand ready to furnish on short notice libraries of from 100 to 10,000 volumes, and some of them would hardly balk at an order for 50,000 to be filled in a month, though no conscientious bookseller recommends such haste in getting together a library of that size. There are many books in existence purporting to name the best 500, 1,000, 8,000, or 10,000 books for a library designed for popular use, and there are similar lists for other serts of libraries. Sunday School Ubraries of from 50 to 1,000 volumes have been ready for immediate delivery any time these fifty years, at prices that seem astonishingly low. Some houses make a specialty of theological libraries, and it happens now and then to some unhappy parson to have 500 volumes of such indigestible matter bundled into his study without notice by well-meaning admirers.

The most careful booksellers, who make a specialty of furnishing libraries on masse to private persons, cities, villages, school districts, and colleges, accept no printed lists as final, and desire for the completion of their task from a month to six months, according to the size and character of the library. Many public libraries of from 1,000 to 10,000 volumes are created every year, and they are selected upon all sorts of plans and perhaps as often as not upon no plan at all. Sometimes a committee of prominent efficiens, no one of whom is on inti-mate terms with so many as a dozen books, undertakes the task and gats hopelessly mixed. The request for advice from publishers and pooksellers brings a shower of catalogues that only increase the confusion, and only a provi-dential interference can prevent a foolish and wasteful expenditure of the money appropriated for the library.

The expert in the matter of selecting books for the ordinary public library that is to be created at a stroke is usually a man who has been commercially acquainted with books for something gambling room.

Last night, with Policemen Schulum and give an intelligent opinion as to the value of perhaps 10,000 books for library purposes. It is his duty as an expert to know something about more books than any bookworm, in the course of a long life, could read. Not only that, but he must know what books have been superseded.

principals to devise a system.

If a plan has been decided upon, Gen. Wingate says, the boys should be carefully measured in order to establish the extent of their physical improvement. The instruction should consist of: The setting-up drill, facing and salutes, marching by squads, manual of arms, regular drill by company and battalion. All scholars, including girls, should be drilled in the first three for fifteen minutes each day. Care should be taken by the teachers to see that the movements are performed with smartness and exactly as prescribed. Their value, both physical and mental, consists largely in snap and precision. Every boy should be re-quired to salute all teachers whenever meeting or addressing them, and the teachers should be equally careful to return the salutes. This an aversion to anything dishonest or tyrannical are expected of the citizen soldier—that they must be "soldiers and gentlemen."

The boys should be divided into companies not exceeding forty to fifty strong, as a larger number is difficult to handle. Each should have the usual number of officers and non-commissioned officers. The officers and non-commissioned officers of the companies and battalion should be selected from the boys displaying good scholarship combined with proficiency in military matters, and manly bearing and characteristics. The officers may be elected by the boys or appointed, as experience may deem better. Warrants should be given to them by the Board of Education at the close of their term of service. A school for officers should be established.
